Some of Mr. Callaghan's intimates even suggested that he was counting on the vote of Jeremy Thorpe, the former Liberal Party leader, who presuma-bly would like to avoid an election until after his trial on charges of conspiring to murder.

Foot's Prognosis

The crucial element in Mr. Callaghan's decision not to go to the country on Sept. 28 or Oct. 5 the dates predicted by all of the most respected British political commentators -- was a revised estimate of the parliamentary progoosis from Michael Foot.

Mr. Foot, a noted left-winger who, as leader of the House of Commons, has become the prime minister's ambassador to the radicals in his own party, told Mr. Callaghan early this summer that without the support of the Liberals the government could not continue.
The risk of a defeat on a vote of
The risk of a defeat on a vote of confidence, he said, would be too grave. The government could be plunged into a general election against its will at any moment.
But recently Mr. Foot changed his mind. As long as the present government offered the best chance of securing limited home rule for Scotland and Wales, be told the prime minister after detailed conversations with colleagues in the House of Commons, Scottish and Welsh nationalists would oot vote to bring the government down. Mr. Foot's assessment led him to

To reinforce their point, the four reminded the prime minister and his advisers of the defeats of Clement Attlee in 1951 and Harold Wilson in 1970, when those two Laterms had expired.

Most of the marginal seats are in England, and even the edge in personal popularity that the prime minister enjoys over Mrs. Thatcher might not have been enough to keep them from falling to the Tories.

Quite apart from such considera-tions, Mr. Callaghan had other reasons for holding off. He did not spell them out to the Cabinet yes-terday or to the nation on television last night. But senior Labor politicians who have known him intimately for years think they under-stand what was going through the prime minister's mind this week as he made perhaps the most momentous decision of his 25-year career in parliamentary politics.

Essentially, the politicians said, Mr. Callaghan felt that by calling an election now be would lose his grip on rebellious elements in the Labor coalition. in understated tones, Mr. Baden reported that the panel of forensic pathologists, who have collectively conducted more than 100,000 autopsies, had found a number of deficiencies in the manner to which the autopsy was done at Bethesda Naval Hospital the night of Nov. 22, 1963,

Hurried Removal

The experts, the committee was told, took exception to the burried removal of Mr. Kennedy's body from Dallas, which had a qualified medical examiner, the inexperience of the military physicians who performed the autopsy; the lack of communication between them and physicians in Dallas who initially treated the president; and the fact that the autopsy physicians never looked at the clothing Mr. Kennedy had been wearing.

Echoing his own chagrin at the pressures that he felt in conducting the autopsy, his first ever, retired Navy Capt. James Humes told the committee yesterday afternoon that be did not see the autopsy photographs or X-rays taken that night until nearly two years later.

Mr. Baden said that the autopsy report that Capt. Humes wrote on Nov. 23-24, 1963, had the fatal shot, entering Mr. Kennedy's head near the hairline, four toches below the actual point of entrance.

Plainly ill at ease, Mr. Humes testified later in the day that he thought the discrepancy was being exaggerated.

Mr. Humes said that he had never precisely stated in the autopsy report where the fatal entrance wound was beyond stating that it was "above the bony occipatal protuberance" in the back of the

The important point, he declared, was that "there was one — and only one — wound of entrance" to the president's skull.

The Warren Commission con-cluded that Oswald, acting alone, fired three shots at the presidential limousine in Dallas, one missing completely, another hitting both Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Connally

Mr. Baden said Mr. Kennedy's jacket and shirt showed a perfora-uon corresponding directly with an entrance wound in the president's back, this one "a bit lower, perhaps two inebes lower" than where the autopsy doctors had depicted it.

This shot, the committee was told, came out through the president's neck where the pathologists found clear signs of an "exit perforation" at the bottom of a surgical incision that the Parkland Hospital doctors had made in the hopes of reviving the president. From there, Mr. Baden said, the bullet tore into Mr. Connally's back, broke a rib, came out his chest, hit his wrist and lodged in his thigh, almost completely spent. The Critics, including Mr.; Weeht, bave argued that the bullet recovered from Mr. Connally's stretcher was too intact to have done all the damage, but the other pathologists on the panel disagreed.

Taking issue with those who like to describe the bullet as "nearly pristine," Mr. Baden said it was a copper-jacketed model that could be expected to stay largely intact except when hitting hard bone, such as a man's skull.

"Pristine," be scoffed at one point. "It's a media term — like being a little bit pregnant. It [the bullet] is significantly flattened. It'd be hard to take a hammer and flatten it as much as it's been flattened."

rise is buge, about 7 million square miles, or twice the land area of the United States. Viewed another way, the continental rise has about half of all the sediment in the oceans. Drilling was conducted from the ship Glomar Challenger two years ago, but laboratory analyses have only just been completed and re-ported to the National Science Foundation here, which pays for the operations of the 400-foot oceanographic research vessel. The drill samples were recovered from strata 5,000 feet thick that lie under 12,000 feet of water. Reith Kvenvolden of the U.S Geological Survey Office in Menlo Park, Calif, and Edward Wimerer of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, in La Jolla, Calif, reported the findings.

A major conclusion is that while

And near the bottom of the section sampled, the organic matter is on the threshhold of being mature - that is, about to enter the phase of oil generation.

The results thus suggest that the continental rise may have substantial accumulations of petroleum.

The continental rise is the world's biggest accumulation of the thick sediment in which oil fields are usually found. "While the amount of organic matter that has been found is small," Mr. Winterer said, "the studies indicate that the envirocoment in the continental rise is one where petroleum could

Carter Aide Pursues GSA Probe

By Ronald Kessler

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (WP) - President Carter has asked attornev Charles Kirbo, his close friend and unofficial advisor, to monitor the investigations of the General Services Administration, the Washington Post has learned.

The president has asked Mr. Kirbo to belp monitor and observe the GSA investigations." Rex Granum, deputy White House press secretary, said. "He will be advising the president on it, indi-cating the importance the president places on the matter."

Mr. Kirbo "will be talking to Justice people as warranted." Mr. Granum said. "and presumably will be receiving information from Justice on the investigations."

Mr. Kirbo said that he has al-ready talked with Attorney General Griffin Bell and other Justice De-partment officials about the several ongoing federal investigations of GSA corruption. He also said he has conferred with GSA Administrator Jay Solomon.

"When there's something that's important to [President Carter], and he has a lot of other things to do, I just take a look at things and advise him," said Mr. Kirbo, a lawver in private practice in Atlanta. Sources said yesterday that fed-

Walking a Line in Moscow

In convicung International Harvester's man in Moscow and suspending his five-year sentence. Soviet authorities seem to have walked a narrow line hetween conflicting political and diplomatic purposes. They fulfilled the domestic imperative of avoiding the full embarrassment of the KGB that acquittal would bave produced; the KGB is the police agency that arrested Francis Crawford, evidently in retaliation for the indictment in New Jersey of two Russians for spying. Even so, in the trial, the prosecutor and the judge repeatedly - surely not by design - showed up the phoniness of the KGB's case. Their crudity established Mr. Crawford's innocence as effectively as be did hy his own

At the same time, the authorities avoided the further jolting damage to Soviet-American relations that would have resulted from a harsh sentence. The Crawford case is not the only irritant that has cropped up in recent months, but it is a major one and one whose removal has been accorded high priority by those on both sides concerned with larger affairs in both diplomacy and trade.

Since it was entirely at Soviet initiative that the Crawford case came about, it has been entirely up to the Kremlin to end it in a satisfactory way. The United States bas rightly rejected any thought of a swap of an innocent American husinessman for the two espionage agents, whose trial in New Jersey begins on Sept. 27.

The possibility remains of a swap of the "Woodbridge two" for other persons whose fate has been the subject of concern on the part of U.S. citizens and the U.S. government alike. The convieted Soviet dissident Anatoli Shcharansky and the convicted Soviet spy Anatoli Filatov are two whose names bave been mentioned in this regard. No matter how common and, yes, useful the practice, there is something forlorn and distasteful about the international trade in human beings. In this instance, it would be necessary to intervene in a judicial process already under way. Nonetheless, if a fair and equal exchange can be arranged, it should be.

A Little Temporary Silence

Behind the security fences of Camp David, Md., the tripartite summit meeting on the Middle East is under way. The conference is not being beld under a blanket of absolute secrecy - there are to be regular, if perhaps laundered, briefings for the press on what has been going on - hut it is being held in the kind of privacy that will preclude the leaders of Egypt and Israel from dashing before television cameras every bour to give their selective interpretations of the proceedings. This voluntary isolation by the participants may prove of no little benefit to diplo-

That consideration pretty clearly was not absent from President Carter's mind when be invited President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel to meet with him at the remote retreat in the Maryland mountains. It would be grossly overstating the case to suggest that the faltering and finally the collapse of Egyptian-Israeli negotiations since the beginning of this year came about because too many things were being said on the public record in Cairo and Jerusalem that should not have been said at all, but it would not be wrong to say that all the speechmaking, the interviews, the adlih comments intended to support the resoluteness of negotiating positions have had a definite unsalubrious effect on the political climate. A little privacy, a little restraint in public comment, a little temporary silence before the microphones will not be a bad

Whether Sadat and Begin will find that tbey bave anything really new to say to each other in the cozy seclusion of Camp David is another matter. There is always the chance, however disturbing it may be to contemplate, that everything that each man has been saying publicly in fact reflects his real and final thoughts, that the antithetical demands of the two sides are indeed what they intend to stand on. If that should be true, then no effort by Carter or anyone else, bowever valiant and perservering it might be, could fairly be expected to hring barmony from the discord. The implicit assumption behind the call for the summit conference - and the willingness of Sadat and Begin to attend - is, though, that the gap is not unbridgeable, and that at the least the regression in Egyptian-Israeli relations that has set in since January can be halted and reversed. This doesn't mean that either Sadat or Begin bas come to Camp David prepared to break the deadlock by making a grand gesture that negates earlier demands. But it could mean that each side is finally ready to embrace concessions that are perceived as being equal in effect, which is to say concessions that cannot be interpreted as signs of unilateral weakness.

This is where Carter's real value and essential role lie: in his ability to proffer conciliatory suggestions that, were they to come from one of the antagonists or the other. would probably be rejected out of band as tainted with special advantage. What can be said factually is that Carter. by his sponsorship of the Camp David summit, is prepared to play that role. What can be optimistically inferred is that Sadat and Begin, by their presence, are prepared to accept that role.

Eurocommunism

The publication of the book "L'URSS et Nous" ("The U.S.S.R. and Us") by five French Communist academics marks a new step in the evolution of that puzzling and often tantalizing phenomenon which bas become known as Eurocommunism . . . a process by which the Communist parties of Western democratic countries seek to adapt themselves to the political norms of the societies in which they operate, and at the same time to dissociate themselves from the Soviet model of socialism, which clearly has neither appeal nor relevance to the working people of modern Western countries.

The French Communist Party has often been seen as a laggard in this process . . . Now the successors of Maurice Thorez and his colleagues feel obliged to make amends by publishing and earnestly recommending to the party faithful a book which admits that the PCF took a long time to draw the conclusions from the 20th Soviet Party Coneress and that this delay had serious consequences. Only so can they bridge the enormous credibility gap created by their earlier . . . persistence in proclaiming that black was white . . . Its version of de-Stalinization is still a carefully orchestrated one, of which it intends to remain . . . in firm control. - From the Times (London).

Two Shocks in Romania

By Leopold Unger

BRUSSELS — The earth shook twice in Romania on Tuesday, Sept. 5. The first tremor eame at 1536 GMT and pushed the markers of the Richter scale seismometers to 4.6. It caused practically no

The second tremor of the day was set off when President Nicolae Ceausescu dismissed the minister of the interior, Gen. Teodor Conan. This reverberating phenomenon al-ready has led to the fall of several ministers, a dozen generals and as many superior officers. Furthermore, before the dust settles, it is certain to cloud the political atmospbere in Romania and elsewhere, For if the removal of Gen.

Conan can be seen as a direct consequence of the defection of one of his former aides. Gen. Ion Pacepa, there are two complementary ways of explaining just what is going on in Bucharest.

Major Crime

The first, the "routine" way, is that Gen. Conan was made to pay the price for a lack of revolutionary vigilance, certainly a major crime in Ceausescu's Romania. The minsters, generals and high civil serves of the security apparatus who were dismissed at the same time - ing terms with the CIA in Washingand some of them jailed — were ton. considered guilty of professional incompetence. Indeed, Gen. Pacepa was the first deputy interior minister and general of the security forces — responsible for the per-sonal security of the head of state - to have defected to the enemy, with whom, according to several sources, he has long been collaborating.

And all of this without being suspected, in the very heart of the unflinehing military and civilian security network which runs a constant check on every Romanian citizen, with the sole and august exception of the paramount chief.

Ceausescu's ire is all the greater because he has always done every-thing possible - some would say too much - to make sure that this sort of thing could never happen.

The president is a man who is nimble with his favors. No official in Romania can be sure of having the same joh tomorrow that be has today. Twice a year, on the average, the earth shakes under the feet of the nation's leading civil servants. and officials can change their posts as in a game of musical chairs.

Before last Tuesday's Riehterrecord political quake, the earth shook violently in January of last year when more than a dozen high officials were removed or transferred. Three ministers and a number of officials got their notices a few months later, following the miners' strike in the summer, last April, several officials and minis-ters — including the foreign minister - were given other tasks, or none at all. But there is another way of analyzing the Pacepa-Conan affair, and that is by placing it in perspective with the delicate Soviet-Romanian relations. The recent scandal has many similarities to the infamous "Serb case."

Sources in Bueharest announced in February, 1972, that Gen. Ion Serb had been executed. Gen. Serb was a veteran of the Tudor-Vladimirescu division created during World War II by Romanian Communists in the Soviet Union, and he reportedly was shot for spying for the Soviet Union. The affair caused much furor at the time and Bucharest was forced to make an official comment on the case.

The Romanian Embassy in Vien-na soon confirmed that Gen. Serb had been "reduced in rank and drummed out of the army." By refusing to deny that Gen. Serb nad been executed. Bucharest implicitly confirmed that he was at the center of a serious rift with the Soviet Union.

Without reaching such extreme proportions (although Gen. Pacepa already has been condemned to death in absentia), the recent affair somewhat resembles the earlier incident.

First, the dismissals each took place following a major event in Chinese-Romanian relations, A few weeks following Gen. Pacepa's defection, Chinese President Hua Kuo-feng visited Bucharest, while a few weeks before the Serb case hroke, Ceausescu went to Mao Tsetung's Peking. In 1972, Ceausescu was almost expelled from Moscow Airport when he tried to make a stopover there on his return from Peking. This year, Moscow is up in arms over the Hua visit.

In addition, as it is the case today, in 1972 the minister of the interior, then Ilie Parilinets, was beld responsible for the errors in the Serb case and was made to pay the price. Furthermore, just as the tions of major Soviet agents, the Conan affair — possibly the first of a series — began with the defection

And this may be the heart of the analogy between two political imhroglios - at least as concerns their potential consequences. In one case as in the other, the threat to Ceausescu — which be very clearly saw looming — was the

Denunciation

Before dismissing Gen. Conan and his colleagues, Ceausesco made it a point to denounce "the rotten elements in the nation, always ready to betray the homeland for a handful of silver. . ." He may well have been alluding as equally to the hard currency equivalent as to the ruble value of this bandful of silver. In other words, it may well be that Gen. Pacepa not only denounced — as did the defectors a few years hack — a Soviet spy network active in West Germany, but, informed as he was, he may also bave "given" a Soviet network to Bucharest.

If that proves to be the case, and whatever his motives may have been. Gen. Pacepa would then bave rendered a final service to his old hoss by alerting him to the least boss by alerting him to the latest forms of the same old peril.

As the Air Force's White House VIP plane — a 707 cousin of President Carter's Air Force One — approached Hanoi. I could see bomh proacted Hanot. I could see bomn craters below along the railroad tracks, near bridges and around the airstrip. As we prepared to land, I could see a number of anni-aircraft guns, lightly camouflaged, apparently pointing at us. The guns were manned.

Curious Stares

It was unbearably hot in the cars, so we got oot and immediately be-came the objects of curious stares. Not only did we look out of place in our suits and ties, but we were wearing large identification badges emhlazoned with the American flag. The better part of valor being making friends, we smiled and said hello. It's doubtful that anyone understood the word, but they returned the smiles, and the ice was broken. For 45 minutes we remained on the badges with him. mained on the bridge with bundreds of curious Vietnamese, but there was no hint of hostility.

Hanoi is a quiet, orderly, austere city. It seems tired, and the scars of war show. The buildings badly need paint and other refurhishing. Everyone seems husy, and the streets are crowded with bicycles and huses. In the parks, groups of adults can be seen doing calisthen-ics, while others squat in the shade listening to political lectures and a platoon of recruits learns how to use the Russian AK-47 rifle.

Our delegation held a series of meetings in the room that once served as an office for Ho Chi Minh. A major concern was settling once and for all the question of Americans still listed as missing in action. At the end of extensive talks with Vietnamese officials, we reached the unanimous opinion that there are no living American POWs or MIAs in Southeast Asia. There is no credible evidence that any MIAs remain alive in Vietnam and Laos. Indeed, all evidence is to the contrary.

Ho Chi Minh City was our next stop. Those of us who remembered saigon during the American occu-Saigon during the American occu-pation observed that the principal change was in degree, not in style.

Formerly they insisted that the United States pay $2 hillion in reparations as a condition for normalization. We told them that Congress is not inclined to 20that Congress is not inclined to appropriate any money for repara-tions or reconstruction aid. They accepted our position, and said they seek normalization talks without preconditions.

What would normalization do for the United States? Vietnam could be a substantial market for our products. It needs rice, soy-beans and other foodstuffs, spare parts for its machinery, and new machinery for agriculture and industry. It needs fertilizer and ag-ricultural ehemicals. Vietnam also lacks cotton and synthetic liber for its textile mills. However, it has no hard currency with which to pay for these items, and would have to sell something in order to obtain

But Vietnam has an important potential resource. Preliminary explorations indicate that there may be substantial offshore oil deposits. But development of this oil hy American companies cannot take place unless the trade embargo is lifted, and that requires normaliza-

There is another advantage to normalization: Vietnam may become the Indochinese counterpart of Yugoslavia. The Vietnamese strongly expressed their desire to steer a middle course between Chi-na and the Soviet Union. They claim that their foreign policy is based on "independence and sover-eignty." They insist that they will not allow their country to be domi-

By normalizing relations with Hanci, the United States could help Vietnam remain unaligned, and could bring stability to what continues to be an uncertain area of the world.

Britain's Ambivalence on U.S. and Europe By William Pfaff

Britain's continuing ambiv-alence over whether the country's true interests lie in ties to Europe or across the Atlantie. This angers Britain's critics on the Continent. But more serious for both Britain and Europe is that it confirms Western Europe in a course of future development from which, in hasie respects. Britain is ebosing to

The Callaghan government has authorized British Airways to buy 19 Boeing-757 airliners, thereby providing Boeing with one of its two indispensible launch orders for that plane. Americans and the pro-Europeans. Despite the 67 percent majority for Europe achieved in the 1975 EEC plebiscite, Britain's leaders remain seemingly unconvinced ahout Europe; and each time a serious choice between America and Europe is posed, they hesitate. But for Europe it implies something else, which the current anger or irritation in Paris or Bonn may obscure. Gravity Center

When the European Community expanded in 1973 from six members to nine, it was meant to change in a basic way. The predominance of West Germany and France was supposed to end. The Dutch and Danes in particular saw Britain as a counterweight in the long term to the influence of the West Germans and French. Europe's center of gravity was no longer to be on the Rhine, in Catholie Europe.

But the change has not taken place. The vital evolution of Europe remains with the old Six, not the Nine, and above all with the French and West Germans — as the most recent proposals for European currency collaboration have again shown. It remains with them because Britain has chosen to decline the major role it might have played. This is a disappointment most of all to the small West European states. But it is a fact about what is bappening to Europe, and London's actions last week confirm which receive front-page exposure in both of Kenya's two principal newspapers, have had a bandwagon effect, so that most observers now predict that Mr. Moi, 54, will be nominated by acclamation.

The declarations of support,

Chances are good that oo elec-tinn will be held. The constitution states that "where only one candi-date for the presidency is validly nominated, he shall be declared to be elected as president.

It is not that Mr. Moi, a tall, softspoken, former headmaster, is exceedingly popular. Like other politicians here, he cut a small figure in the long shadow of Mr. Kenyatta. # A U.S. Study on Laetrile Reports Patient Response

By Jane E. Brody

patients purported to have benefited from treatment with laetrile has revealed six patients with a significant response to the controversial therapy.

The institute said that its findings, reported in the current issue of The New England Journal of Medicine, allowed no conclusions to be drawn regarding the possible benefits or lack of benefits from aetrile treatment.

The analysis was made to determine if there was any justification for starting a government-spon-sored clinical trial of laetrile, a substance derived from apricot and other pits that is said in release kill-ing doses of cyanide within cancer cells. Laetrile is not approved for use by the federal Food and Drug Administration and cannot be legally transported across state lines, but several states have recently passed laws allowing its use within state borders

Although laetrile has shown no variable anticancer activity in animal studies, the cancer institute is considering a human laetrile study in response to public pressure and tn try to settle the laerrile question, A committee of the insutute is scheduled to meet Sept. 25 to decide whether to support human tests. The study, published Wednesday, was undertaken to belp io making this decision.

In their report, the institute scientists expressed surprise that only 93 lactrile cases, from the more than 70,000 persons said in have taken lactrile and the hundreds whn supposedly have been cured by it, were submitted to the governmental agency for evaluation.

455,000 Letters

The institute had sent 455,000 letters to physicians, pharmacists, hospital and health department officials and pro-lactrile groups soliciting cases thought to have benefit-ed from lactrile. ## Charter Airlines Fear a Squeeze In Gatwick Plan

LONDON, Sept. 8 (UPI) — Tiny Stansted Airport could become Britain's leading charter airport ni the 1980s because of a government policy to switch noncharter flights to the Iberian peninsula from Heathrow Airport to Garwick, The move would force many charter airlines to move their operations from Gatwick, south of London, to Stansled, northeast of London doo, the weekly Travel Trade Gazette said yesterday. Many charter airlines, the publi-cation said, fear they will be squeezed out of Gatwick to Stansted by the arrival of Iberia (Spain), TAP (Portugal), British Airways and other carriers. "There is speculation that the new charter airlines, such as the ones recently formed by Global and Intasun and Simitar's cargo operation, will be refused Gatwick licenses by the British Airport Authority," the publication said.

"Senior executives of charter air-lines hased at Gatwiek are ac-knowledging the fact that the gov-ernment has a secret policy to deand the other with lung cancer — velop Stansted as Britain's No.1 experienced a complete disappear- airport," it said.

U.S. Judge Rules East Germany Owes $28,500 Taxes in Virginia

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 8 (AP) — A U.S. judge ruled yesterday that East Germany owes Arlington County $28,500 in defin.

quent real-estate taxes. U.S. District Judge Albert Bryan had ruled on Aug. 4 that de. spite claims of diplomatic immunity, the East German government could be sued for local taxes on an apartment building it owns. The judge said that diplomatic immunity did not apply because the Fare Germany rents the building to embassy personnel as a commercial

He then required county officials to establish how much property tax is owed for 1977, the first tax year that East Germany owned the building

Yesterday, according David Lesso, an assistant county attorney. Judge Bryan ruled that East Germany owed $24,000 in property taxes, plus a $2,400 delinquence penalty and $2,100 in interest on the delinquent taxes.

The judge said he would order the East German government to pay the sums, and would specify that the county has a lien on the property until they are paid

There was no comment from East German Embassy officials but there were indications that there would be an appeal.

The Heart of the 'Changeling'

By John Walker

LONDON, Sept. 8 (IHT) — Thomas Middleton and William Rowley's "The Changeling" is but one of the many marvelous Jacobean plays fallen into un-deserved neglect, notably by the National Theatre, which has made little effort to explore the riches of Britain's dramatic past.

"The Changeling" was last seen in London in 1961 in Tony Richardson's brooding production with Robert Shaw as De Flores, the complex and sensitive villain whose love sets him free from moral considerations.

By one of those odd coincidences, Peter Gill has now revived the play at the Riverside Studios two months ahead of the Royal Shakespeare Company's produc-tion at The Aldwych. That is probably all to the good, for the play deserves to be part of the permanent repertoire of our stage. T.S. Eliot thought that more than any play except those of Shakespeare, it had a profound and permanent moral value and horror.

In Gill's delicate and intense production on the wide-open spaces of the Riverside's stage, it also has an immediate dramatic appeal, baring, through the use of self-absorbed soliloquy, the innermost lives of its two main protagonists, Beatrice trapped by a degrading relationship and loving every minute of it, even when overwhelmed by self-loathing. Brian Cox's De Flores, with his face puckered and scarred, is both brutal and tender, a man driven inexorably by a force he does not wish to control. "I'm in pain and must be eased of you," he says in a line that stresses the existential na-ture of the tragedy.

directors, working with a quiet in-telligence that is a welcome change from more bravura approaches, which so often attempt to hide a superficial understanding. Like an expert surgeon, Gill deftly exposes the heart of the play. His one flourish is to come the accord half mit a ish is to open the second half with a series of frozen tableaux. Otherwise, he groups his characters with meticulous care on Liz de Costa's huge, flagstoned stage — although be occasionally faces the problem of getting characters off the space by having them spring away as if they had another performance to give somewhere else.

Now that Middleton has been rediscovered for the moment, perhaps some director could explore other plays by this prolific play-wright. Shakespeare's junior by 16 years and one of the most popular authors of his time, who nevertheless was a fine enough dramatist to write for all time.

The London Season Starts With a Modest No-Frills Auction

By Souren Melikian

ONDON, Sept. 8 (IHT) — An unpretentious sale of "Marine and Sporting Pictures, Watercolors and Drawings" inaugurated the new season at Christie's South Kensington. It was a model of effi-ciency and salesmanship and at the same time the typical kind of auc-tinn that true collectors should not miss. Christie's premises at South

Kensington are reserved for the nofrill sales. This is where Christie's auctions off items that would not justify the expense involved in so-phisticated anctions, with their heavy advertising and richly illus-trated catalogs. Because every stage in the auctioneering process is simplified to a maximum, the system allows sellers to get their property sold off within a minimum length of time - as little as two to three this kind are also thoroughly organized. Items are sold by category according to a set pattern, each category baving its given day in the week. Catalogs with concise two-line entries are printed and mailed a few days in advance. Viewing time is ample: The watercolurs sold Wednesday would be seen Monday. Wednesday could be seen Monday from 9:30 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. and Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00

English auctioneers manage to build up highly consistent groups of paintings. Wednesday's sale fo-cussed on watercolors and oils of the 19th and early 20th centuries with a predominance of seascapes and a good deal of sporting scenes and animal studies. By definition such sales include a large number even complete unknowns. This does not necessarily mean that the paintings are trash, even if they are, in general, on the inexpensive side. Often they are just pleasing, if

Equally decorative were a pair of watercolors showing sailboats en-tering Lowestoft harbor painted in 1902 by Loftus P. Perkins. The touches of mellow brown on the sails contrasting with the shades of gray and blue in the sky are charming and £40 was not a high price to pay. But neither Harrison nor Perkins have left a trace in the standof works by fairly obscure artists or ard dictionaries of artists.

In the no-frill sales, there is often some good kitsch — at cut rates, On Wednesday there were one or two paintings combining that peculiar touch of unwitting humor and carthiness that 19th-century English animal studies often have. An unsigned painting — merely titled "English School" — showed two large terriers running after a rabbit. It was knocked down at £12. Occasionally, interesting works turn up that one hardly sees at grander auctions. Wednesday, there was a seascape called "Red Sail, Blythe River Estuary, Suffolk" that was remarkable in its way. The artist, Ronald Ossary Dunlop, is well known only to specialists. A member of the Royal Academy since 1950, he is one of the founders of the group of artists and writers at one time known as emo-tionalists. Both the Tate Gallery and the Contemporary Art Society own some of his works. The seasacpe sold Wednesday has the strong outlines of early 20th-century fauve landscapes — halfway he-tween a Raoul Dufy of the fauve period and an Albert Marquet. With its original composition and palette, it was hardly overpriced at £110. In July, 1973, another Dunlop had sold at Christie's main auction house for £399.

For experienced buyers this is where true bargains are to be had. al, who acquired for £100 a paintng signed A.M.N. showing an American clipper in an open sea must have known what he was trait painter who exhibited his work in Berlin between 1839 and 1860, and Henry Thomas Schafer, who despite his name belongs to the English School.

In order to make the no-frill sales attractive to the more sophisticated buyers, Christie's generally tries to include several pictures of some importance.

Wednesday, there were two matching seascapes by one of those British painters who are so often re-markable but who remain unknown outside the British Isles because they are eminently English in their choice of subject matter and never left their bome country.

Thomas Luny, a marine painter born in London in 1759, exhibited at the Royal Academy from 1780 to 1802. He worked in the romantic manner of the latter half of the 18th century and was skiliful at rendering all the nuances of clouds hovering over choppy seas. Although he lived until 1837, little is known about his work after 1802. Remarkably enough, one of the seascapes in the sale, which shows shipping vessels in a swell passing a lighthouse, is dated 1833. The other, representing fishermen unloading their catcb on a beach as a frigate sails in the background, car-ries the date 1823. They were bought for £1800 each. These are excellent buys made by a connois-seur who knew exactly what he was

There is, in fact, an intense compotition between the two major London firms, Sotheby's and Christie's, and two smaller ones, Bonham's and Phillip's, to enlarge their respective shares in this lower end of the market. Texas Instruments Develops Chip

Texas Instruments is introducing an advanced design computer memory integrated circuit with 65,536 storage cells on a single silicon chip. The 64k Dynamie Random Access Memory, RAM, the first of its kind to be produced by a U.S. semicondutor manufacturer, is scheduled for volume production in early 1979 and is expected to account for more than a fourth of the global metal-oxide semiconductor market by the early 1980's. The memory, priced at $125 each in small quantities, represents the fourth generation of circuits that in the past half-dozen years have all but taken over the market for computers' main memories, which formerly consisted of small magnetic rings known as memory cores. The earlier generations of dynamic rams, contained 1,000, 4,000 and 16,000 bits of data-storage space. Marine Solicits Approval for Sale

Marine Midland Banks, in mailed proxy materials solieiting shareholder approval of proposals to sell to Hungkong & Shanghai Banking controlling interest in the New York-based bank hulding company, disclosed that Hongkong & Shanghai plans to acquire the stock through a Dutch affiliate. That unit is HSBC Huldings B.V., a subsidiary of Kellett N.V. which, in turn, is a Netherlands Antilles subsidiary of Hongkong & Shanghai. In financial statements with the proxy material, Marine Midland disclosed that had a $282,000 net operating loss in 1977 on its European operations, where it has more than $1.6 billion of assets. Its most profitable foreign operations were in Western Hemisphere nations, where it had 1977 operating net of almost $1.7 million on assets of $1.1 billion.

Union Bank Sees Lower Net

Union Bank of Switzerland expects slightly lower results for 1978, compared with the year earlier, the bank says. Officials say commissions from the loan business had diminished and noted that the international competition had become harsher. However, they added that the decline of profit margins in this sector was compensated for by an increase in vol-ume, which rose 1.3 billion Swiss francs (about $799 million) since the beginning of the year.

Plessey Cuts Work Force at Garrard Plessey says it is planning a major cutback at Garrard, its loss-making consumer electronics subsidiary which makes stereos and other phonographic equipment. Plessey said it was serving dismissal nutices tri 1,250 nf Garrard's 1,830 employees and that one of Garrard's three main factories is in be closed. Garrard lost £5.1 million in the year ended March 31, 1978, and a further £1 million in the June quarter of the current fiscal year. In a statement, Plessey said:
"The cutback is due to a worldwide slump in the consumer electronic audio market, a major increase in the sales of Japanese models which have remained virtually unchanged in price despite high rates of inflation internationally and the increased value of the yen, and the decline in the value of the U.S. dollar egainst the pound. This is particularly significant as over half Garrard sales are in the U.S.

Under the current anti-inflation program, business and labor have en asked to keep this year's price and wage increases below 1976 and 1977 average boosts. But this "deceleration" principle has proved too fuzzy, according to government inflation fighters, and Mr. Carter's program is widely viewed as ineffective.

"It's too easy to pretend not to understand" the deceleration prin-ciple, an administration official says. The beefed-up program would be more specific and more difficult

Under the new proposal, there would be a national wage standard, or guideline, tied to increases in the cost of living. If the consumer price index rose 8 percent in a given year, wages would be expected to rise no more than 8 percent the next year.

Major Problems

A move to specific wage-price guidelines could create two major problems for the Carter administration. It could revive fears among businessmen and labor leaders that the government is headed toward mandatory wage and price con-trols, despite Mr. Carter's repeated assurances in the contrary if executives anticipate controls, they might make quick increases in their list

The wage guidelines also could provoke a number of labor unions to strike for increases in excess of unhappy Mr. Nakagawa is due to guidelines, which would not require increases below the prior year's inthe government established standbe sent back to Washington by an legislative action, are contained in a crease by 1 to 1.5 percentage ards. Repeated strikes in major industries would test the administralines. In the past, officials have accepted - indeed encouraged inflationary labor settlements to minimize labor unrest.

Indications are that the anti-inflation package will put heavy stress on restraining the federal budget. James Melniyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget, bas talked publicly of get-ting the deficit for the fiscal 1980 budget, which the president will send to Congress in January, down "into the very low 30s" of billions of dollars. The deficit for fiscal 1979, which will start Oct. 1, is expected to be around $40 billion.

New Measures

DJ) - The Carter administration will announce some new measures this month to beef up its program to fight inflation, chief inflation adviser Robert Strauss said today. "We are looking at everything short of mandatory wage and price controls" he said and added that additional measures probably will be announced early in 1979. He declined to discuss what the measures may include although he hinted that new steps to ease government regulations that put pressure on prices may be among them.

U.S. Prices Fall .1% On Wholesale Goods

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP. the largest since the 1.7-percent de-DD) — U.S. wholesale prices decline in August 1977. ed a seasonally adjusted 0.1 percent in August, the first drop in two years, the Labor Department said

The decrease, which compared with a 0.5-percent increase in July and a 0.7-percent rise in June, was the first since the 0.2-percent drop in August 1976. It was attributed tn in August 1976. It was attributed in a large drop in consumer food prices, which dropped 1.5 percent following a 0.3-percent decline in July and a 1.1-percent increase in June. The department said whilesale prices for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables dropped an adjusted 6.7 percent last month and egg prices declined 3.9 percent.

declined 3.9 percent.

Prices fur items other than food rose an adjusted 0.4 percent following a increases of 0.8 percent in July and 0.6 percent in June. Prices for capital equipment rose 0.4 per-cent in August after gains of 0.5 percent in July and 0.8 percent in June.

Finished durable goods prices rose 0.7 percent last month follow-ing a 1.8-percent increase in July and prices for non-durables rose 0.3 percent following an increase of percent.

Before seasonal adjustment the wholesale price index for finished goods stood at 195.3 percent of the 1967 average, up 7.7 percent from a year earlier. Intermediate goods, which have been partly processed but need further work before becoming linished goods, rose an adjusted 0.5 percent, the same rate as in July and up from the 0,3-percent increase in June. Intermediate prices for foods and feeds dropped 3.4 percent against an increase of 1.5 percent in July and a decrease of 2,7 percent in June. The August drop was the in June. The August drop was the largest since the 4.9-percent decline in August 1977. Prices of intermediate goods other than food rose 0.7 percent after rises of 0.4 percent in July and 0.5 percent in June.

The index for crude goods that have not been processed dropped 1.3 percent compared with a July decline of 0.6 percent and a June rise of 1.8 percent. The drop was

Canada Posts Record Deficit On Transactions

OTTAWA, Scpl. 8 (AP-DJ) -Canada bad a current-account deficit of $1.36 billion seasonally adjusted in the second quarter, a record quarterly shortfall, the statistics office said today. The first-quarter gap was $504 million and the year-ago second quarter deficit was $1.24 billion.

It was the seventeenth consecutive quarter that Canada has had a deficit in its current account. Canada earlier reported a seasonally adjusted trade surplus of $554 million the second quarter compared with a first-quarter surplus of $1.47

The government also estimated its cash deficit at $9.7 billion for fiscal 1979-80 down from an estimated 11.8 billion for the current 1978-79 fiscal year.

However, government nfficials said the deficit for fiscal 1979-80 which ends March 31, 1980, may have to be revised when the government announces its next budget. Fiscal 1979-80 spending is estimated to total $52.6 billion, up 8.9 percent from $48.3 billion estimated for fiscal 1978-79. The estimates are contained in a joint economic statement by Finance Minister Jean Chretien and Treasury Board president Robert Andras.

Concerning Canada's economic outlook for calendar 1979, the government forecast a nominal increase of 11 percent in gross national product but did not make an estimate of real growth after adjustment for price increases.

Crude prices for foods and feeds dropped 1.8 percent following a 2.5-percent drop in July and a 1.9-percent increase in June. Crude prices for goods other than food declined an adjusted 0.5 percent, the first drop since the 0.5-percent decline in September 1977. These prices ruse 2.3 percent in July and were up 1.7 percent in June.

The Federal Reserve Board also reported today that consumer in-stallment credit expanded a season-ally adjusted $3.3 billion in July, enimpared with an increase of an adjusted $3.8 billion increase in

When he saw a rerun of that classic in 1975, Henry Berry was inspired by that exchange to write something about the American Heinies on the run now. P Kaiser dance - strutting to a tune, all about the silvery moon." This book is the result, a work of witness and memory. Berry sought out 100 of the aging but far from fading veterans of World War l, men who had been in France, who could give direct accounts of what that war of 60 years ago was like in human terms.

He found 100 people (Phil Hammerslough, a school chum of his father, who had served with the 101st Machine Gun Battalion of the 26th Yankee Division, with the humor that marks a lot of the rembetter hurry"). Representing a cross section of hackgrounds and classes, colors and creeds, they include the famous (Capt. Mark Clark, K company, 11th Infantry, 5th Division), the influential (Congressman Hamilton Fish, who commanded black troops and fought to win recognition for their gallantry), the glamorous (Robert Lowell Moore, who served with the Lafay-ette Escadrille) and the ohscure foot soldiers, trench dwellers, machine gunners and sharpshooters who knew at Belleau Wood and Saint Mihiel that their efforts had

Clear too are the recollections of those who speak of their comrades who died in battle or had "gone West" since the war. The anecdotes

IT WAS the arrogant German are rich and generous and some cannot be read without a misting police chief in the film "Casahlaneye. Lou Brockway, once of the 310th Infantry, remembers his two fraternity brothers, Sub Donaghue, called the "elegant Donaghue" to distinguish him, and Gus Donahue, who didn't claim descent from the kings of Ireland. The three had been pals at Hamilton, had played on the baskethall team, gone into the same regiment and called them-

Gus mused, one beautiful day in a rest area: "We surely have the Heinies on the run now. Perhaps Expeditionary Force, the dough-boys who, as the old song "K-K-K-Katy," had it, "could make the ment - we had to miss our own."

Brockway told Berry: "A few mornings later, our beloved Gus -Walter Emmett Donahue - took a machinegun hurst in his stomach. That same afternoon the Germans started to really pull back; we had practically no casualties at all after that. Gus lingered for a few days. hut he never made it back for commencement. God, how we missed him!"

Sometimes Berry came too late. Seeking information on the Lost Battalion, he received the name of Sam Leavitt as a surviving member iniscences, warned Berry, "You'd of the unit. He called the number he was given, only to find that Leavitt had died the day before. Occasionally, Berry was mistaken B for someone trying to sell a book about World War I hy wives and widows whose hearing was not what it used to be. But he finally tracked down Jack Herschkowitz, a runner for Maj. Charles W. Whittlesey who, at 87, proved a gold mine of information - though only after he had checked out Berry with Doubleday Advertising Co. (a firm which has no connection with Douhleday Puhlishing Co.)

If there are Falstaffs among stopped the Germans.

They seem and are survivors from another world, the world of played down the accomplishment which won him the Distinguished Service Cross. Berry found the citation, which said that in order to protect his two comrades from a German strack, "Private Herschkowitz deliberately drew the enemy fire to himself, greatly aiding the others to escape. Private Her-I remember my father's story schkowitz succeeded in delivering his message the next morning."

Infantry humor downplayed the Lost Battalion legend. "First Doughboy: Hey, I lost my watch!' Second Doughboy: 'What are you harping about?' A major over in the 77th has lost a whole battalion!"

For many of the men it was their

Yanks Crush Red Sox

From Wire Disputches
BOSTON, Sept. 8 — Willie Randolph drove in five runs, three with a bases-loaded double, as the New York Yankees exploded for 21 hits last night in a 15-3 victory over the Bosion Red Sox.

Winning for the 13th time in 15 games, New York moved within three games of the first-place Red Sox in the American League East Randolph, Thurman Munson and Roy White had three hits each as the Yankees went on their big-gest hitting and scoring binge of the season.

The Yankees made short work of Boston starter Mike Torrez and continued their assault on Andy Hassler, Dick Drago and Bill Campbell. Every New York batter except reserve outfielders Paul Blair and Gary Thomasson had at least one hit in handing the Red Sox their seventh defeat in the last nine games. However, New York had to withstand two scares.

Veteran pitcher Catfish Hunter retired with a 12-0 lead after suffering a pulled groin muscle in serving up a triple to Carl Yastrzemski at he start of the fourth. Then, with New York in front, 13-1, in the sixth, catcher Thurman Munson was hit in the head by a pitch thrown by Drago.

Hunter's injury was not serious.
Munson did not lose consciousness and walked from the field. The Yankees reported that he probably will be able to return to the lineup

The Yankees scored two runs in the first, three in the second, two in the sixth and two in the eighth. Re-liever Ken Clay earned his third victory in seven decisions. Clay was greeted by Carlton Fisk's 20th homer after Yastrzemski's triple in the fourth but allowed just one unearned run the rest of the way.

The victory put the Yankees closer to first place than they've been since June 1. It was the 18th loss at home for Boston this season.

Torrez, who left New York as a free agent to join the Red Sox fol-lowing New York's World Series victory last season, in which he was a hero, struck out Mickey Rivers to start the game. The Yankees got rolling on third baseman Butch Hobson's throwing error which enabled Randolph to reach first.

Munson followed with a single and Reggie Jackson, a surprise starter after being hospitalized in New York for a couple of days with a virus, singled, scoring Randolph. Munson scored on a sacrifice fly by Chris Chambliss.

The Yankees shelved Torrez in the second on consecutive singles by Lou Piniella, White, Dent and Rivers. Hassler replaced Torrez, walking Randolph and surrendering an infield hit to Munson before retiring the next three batters.

New York added two more runs in the third on a double hy Piniella, a safe bunt by White, an infield out and a single by Randolph. Then the Yankees turned the game into a rout with a five-run fourth sparked by Randolph's bases-loaded dou-than Bert Jones and Bob Griese - Chicago by 2. will be the quarterbacks on Sunday when the Baltimore Colts take on the Miami Dolphins. The absence of two of pro football's finest passers due to injuries has already been felt at the box office — a crowd of 45,000, 15,000 below capacity, is anticipated. Troup. Baltimore's second stringer, missed the action Monday night when the Dallas Cowboys crushed the Colts, 38-0, with Mike Kirkland at quarterback for Baltimore. Strock, Griese's longtime understudy, admitted to a bad game after the New York Jets upset the Dolphins, 33-20. Previews of all the games follow, with won-lost records in parentheses:

NATIONAL CONFERENCE Saturday

Detroit (0-1) at Tampa Bay (0-1)
-The Lions won't be going far until they find some Offensive tackles. Their quarterback, Greg Landry, was dropped eight times by Green Bay, Mike Boryla, injured last season, gets his first start as Buccaneer quarterback. The Bucs' improved offensive line makes this a real team at last. Betting choice - De-troit by 2 points.

New Orleans (1-0) vs. Green Bay (1-0) at Milwaukee — Whichever team wins will have a winning streak of two, to its astonishment. The Packers are starting three rookies, James Lofton at wide receiver. John Anderson and Mike Hunt at linebacker. Archie Manning, in de-cent health at last, had a big game for the Saints against Minnesota. Betting choice - Green Bay by 1.

Atlanta (1-0) at Los Angeles (1-0) — The Falcons' weak offense was hurt badly by the loss for the season of Alfred Jenkins, the only respectable wide receiver. The Rams will start their biggest backs, John Cappelletti and Cullen Bryant, and grind out the yards. Betting choice — Los Angeles by Dallas (1-0) at New York Giants (1-0) — The Giants plan to start Joe Pisarcik at quarterback because he can run from danger. The punter, Dave Jennings, will be busy. The Cowboys have never looked so good in September, which worries Tom Landry. The coach likes to worry. Betting choice -Dallas by 11.

Philadelphia (0-1) at Washington (1-0) - The Redskins played extremely well in defeating the Patriots and coach Jack Pardee has opened up their stodgy offense. eagles thought they outplayed the Rams. Their improved offense gained a commendable 208 yards. Betting choice - Washington by 4.

Chicago (1-0) at San Francisco (0-1) — For the first time, Walter Payton and O.J. Simpson will be running on the same field. Golden Richards, the Bears' new acquisicrease its lead in the NL East to 14 tion from the Cowboys, will help immensely. The '49ers can't expect

AMERICAN CONFERENCE

Miami (0-1) at Baltimore (0-1) -The Colts have lost more than Bert Jones. Also out are Stan White. their best linebacker; Norm Thompson, their best cornerback, and George Kunz, their best offensive lineman. The Dolphins had a rough practice week after giving up 377 yards, 345 in the air, and 33 points to the Jets. Don Shula's teams are seldom that easy. Betting choice — Miami by 3.

New York Jets (1-0) at Buffalo

(0-1) — Terry Miller, O.J.'s successor, had an impressive debut for the Bills, 60 yards rushing, 97 receiving. But the defense cannot hold Richard Todd and Wesley. Walker, the Jets' deep pass due, if they're on again. The Jets need a few more Sundays to prove themselves. Betting choice - New York

Scattle (0-1) at Pittsburgh (1-0) — The Seahawks gained 446 yards against a good San Diego defense. But the best back, Sherman Smith, is out, with Al Hunter the replacement. The Steelers are tough again. Sid Thornton has edged out Rocky Bleier as the halfback next to Franco Harris. Franco is still rolling. Betting choice — Pittsburgh by 14. Oakland (0-1) at San Diego (1-0) — Few recall that the Chargers up-set the Raiders in the 10th game last season. The loss at Denver last Sunday may have taken some zip away from the Raiders. They cut their longtime middle guard, Dave Rowe, this week and re-signed Mike McCoy, who had been cut two weeks ago. John Jefferson, the rookie receiver from Arizona State, is earning raves from the Chargers.

Betting choice — Oakland hy 6. Houston (0-1) at Kansas City (1-0) - Another quarterback has been to the hospital. Dan Pastorini of the Oilers went for sore ribs and is doubtful. The replacement would be the rookie, Gifford Nielsen, who helped beat the Cowboys in presea-son. The Chiefs' wing-T offense smashed the Bengals. The three running backs are Tony Reed, Mark Bailey and MacArthur Lane. Betting choice — Houston by 6. Cincinnati (0-1) at Cleveland (1-

0) - The Bengals are in bad shape. John Reaves, the quarterback, leaves much to be desired and now the best defensive back, Ken Riley, is out. The Browns' passer, Brian Sipe, could have a big day. Betting choice — Cleveland by 5.

INTERCONFERENCE

New England (0-1) at St. Louis (0-1) - Both teams have major injuries. The Cardinals lost for the season their best defensive lineman. Charlie Davis, Mike Dawson, who has had a bad back, replaces him. The offensive line is banged up, too. The Patriots have three regulars out, Julius Adams and Prenuce McCray from the defense plus the punter, Mike Patrick. There is no adequate replacement for McCray at strong safety. Betting choice -New England by 7.

Monday

Denver (1-0) at Minnesota (0-1) - The Broncos finally got their of-fense going in the last five minutes against Oakland. The refurbished offensive line was impressive. At running back, Otis Armstrong re-places Rob Lytle, who will miss a couple of games. Carl Eller has rejoined the Vikings after a salary dispute. Even though he is 36, he is needed for a defense that gave up 429 yards to the Saints. Betting

Andretti, Peterson to Duel in Italy Prix

MONZA, Italy, Sept. 8 (UPI) -Mario Andretti overcame brake can come from Peterson. "If I can problems and gunned his black and win it, I will try," said the 34-yeargold Lotus to the fastest time in today's opening trials for the Italian Grand Prix on Sunday.

Andretti, the defending champion, covered the 5.8-kilometer Monza course in one minute, 37.78 seconds, almost half a second faster than his Lotus teammate, Ronnie Peterson. Peterson, the only man with a chance of catching Andretti in the world drivers championship standings, clocked 1:38.26. "Andretti's the champion for sure. There's no way to beat the Lotus unless they beat themselves."

said Brabham-Alfa manager Bernie McLaren team manager Teddy Mayer watched Andretti's Lotus scream past the pits and nodded his "No way." he said, referring to McLaren's chances against the

to defer to Andretti, the No.-1 driver, if the race becomes a two-car But Andretti said he was taking no chances. "Everything depends on Peterson. He'll be the one I'm watching for." Andretti said. The point is not to force the car.

I'll drive to the limit without going over," he said. Jean-Pierre Jobouille, driving a Renault Turbo, was third fastest today at 1:38.44. Gilles Villeneuve, in a Ferrari, was fourth a 1:38.53. John Watson rounded out the top five by posting 1:38.61 in his Brabham-Alfa. Andretti, who already has won six races this year, leads the Formula-1 standings by 12 points over Peterson and is poised to take his first crown, him with the late Jim Clark for victories in a single season. Clark, also behind a Lotus wheel, triumphed seven times in 1963.

Austria's Niki Lauda, who has already lost the title he won last year, could manage no better than righth in his Brahham-Alfa.

Lobbyists' Building

WASHINGTON — I must admit I was as critical as most an amendment is to a lobby's people when I heard that the cause." Senate's new, ornate office huilding, originally budgeted for $45 millioo, would now cost an estimated $122 million, and that the way things were going, might well climb to $200 million by the time it was completed in 1981.

But then I talked to a lobbyist who persuaded me that thebuilding was absolutely essential, no matter what it cost.

"It's impossihe told me. Buchwald

"for lobbyisis to do their work in the two Senate huildings now in existence. We have no place to sit while waiting to see senators. I've been in offices where there have been so many lobbyists that half of us had to sit on

"What about the halls?" I said. "I thought that's where you people buttonholed most of the senators and their staffs."

The halls used to be okay for lobbying." he replied. "But you don't realize how the lobbyist population has exploded in the last few years. We have lobbyisis lobbying lobbyists. The halls of the two buildings are mob scenes. You'll start working on a senator and another lobbyist will suddenly elbow you out of the way and without so much as an 'excuse me' start making his pitch for some other bill. Government can't operate under these conditions. That's why it's essential that we have this new Seoate building no matter what it costs.

"Can't you lobby away from the Capitol at a nice restaurant or "No way, You have to be where the action is. Wheo a bill is being debated on the floor, you have to move in right away and warn the senator about the pitfalls in it. If you can't get to him immediately.

Hassan II to Visit U.S.

RABAT, Morocco. Sept. 8 (UPI) — King Hassan II will go to the United States Nov. 14-15 for talks with President Carter, the official newspaper reported today.

"You're in a tough business." I

"Of course I'm io a tough business. But that's what I'm being paid for. At the same time we're being impeded at every turn. If it was just the lohhvists clogging up the halls, I wouldn't mind. But now you have amateurs coming in every day wanting to see their senators, and the television and press people keep getting in your way. It's a jungle up there in those old Senate offices and the only thing that is going to save us is a new huilding."
"But everyone feels that with the cost of government skyrocketing the Senate should be more careful about overruns on its own offices. Some taxpayers worry that if the senators get more office space, they'll hire larger staffs."

Larger staffs mean more effi-cient legislation. The extra space will make everybody's work easier. For example, it isn't generally known, but a great deal of the legislation in this country is originally drawn up by lobbyists. If we could have a place to work in a senator's office, it would speed up things tremendously."

"Do you mean to say you're hoping to get desk space in the oew Senate office building?"
"Not really desk space. But it would be nice if a desk and typewriter were available so we could type an amendment as a bill is being proposed on the floor."

"I imagine the private restaurant on the top of the new Senate office building will be very helpful for you people, too." I said.

"That was my idea. I lobbied it through at the time," he said. "I pointed out that as long as they were spending so much money on a new office building, the least the senators could do would be to have a restaurant with a view. It's one thing to vote money for the departments of government, but it brings the reality much closer to home when you can actually see them."

"You make a strong case for spending so much of the taxpayers' money for another Seoate build-

MARY BLUME

Filming Singer's Unorthodox Mysticism

BERLIN (IHT) — Isaac Bashevis Singer writes in Yiddish for a worldwide audience and sets many of his tales in the shtetls of his native Poland although he has lived in New York since 1935. He is published regularly by the tiny Jewish Daily Forward and the glossy New Yorker. His stories are filled with arcane ritual, lechery, unorthodox mysticism and darkness ("the supernatural," he has said, "is a kind of theology we don't know yet"). Edmund Wilson nominated him for the Nobel Prize. Movie people snap up his work the moment it comes out but it is never filmed.

The one exception is "The Magician of Lublin," now being made into a film, "The Magician," with Alan Arkin in the title role. Louise Fletcher as the middle class ships he are the middle-class shiksa he pursues, and Valerie Perrine and Shelley Winters among the other women in his life. The director is Menahem Golan, who says he is more enthusiastic about Singer than his fellow Israelis: "They don't waot books about the holocaust or period life, they are concerned with life now."

Golan (born Globus. named himself after the Golan Heights in 1948 when David Ben-Gurion urged Israelis to drop their European names) is burly, energetic, the producer of 35 films and director of 25, in-cluding "Operation Thunder-bolt," the best of the quickies made after the Entebbe raid, and a pre-"Fiddler on the Roof" adaptation of Sholem Aleichem, "Teyve and His Seven Daugh-Although be studied with Michel St. Denis in London, he can't stand the stage any more ("nothing but words") but will sit through any film gladly. He is an enthusiast. "I have sold my house for movies twice," he says. "and I'll do it again if I have to."

Five Years

It has taken Golan five years to get "The Magician" off the ground. The American studios turned it down as too Jewish. theo a German tax shelter company decided to back it, and the Berlin Senate also gave out a nice subsidy. Which is why Golan and his Israeli crew and American actors are filming the story of a Jewish magician in a clammy, bunker-like studio in West Berlin.

The situation makes the Americans uncomfortable — "I can't get the war out of my mind; I wonder what the buildings were, what the people were," Louise Fletcher says and it is certainly full of frony. But frony is not something Germans have much feeling for nor is it something Israelis have much time for these days although Golan has taken a certain pleasure in dressing elderly German extras as Hasidic Jews.

"Imagine a former Wehrmacht officer having a Jew's beard glued on him, what must he think?" Golan asks. Probably what he thinks is. Thank God it's only a movie.

"I don't think it's such a Jewish story," Golan says. "It is about an artist who is locked in and looking for another world." Later. Golan says to Arkin about Yasha, the magician, "He does not eod up religious, he is not a religious man." Arkin looks dubious. "We can see about this." Golan adds soothingly. During a break Golan says. "When people ask Yasha if

God exisis, he says he doesn't know but man must behave as if

He did, That, I think, is the message of the film."

Indeed, unlike most Singer stories, "The Magician," is set outside the ghetto with Yasha trying to make his way io the ordinary world: the illusionist who comes to believe his illusions, causing so much harm that eventually he literally walls himself in to protect others from him and thus becomes the biggest illusion of all - for in its original meaning the word refers to mockery, not deception — a holy man,

As Yasha, Alan Arkin, a fine, reticent and self-effacing actor whose credits range from "Catch 22" to Sigmund Freud in "The Seven Per Ceot Solution," has had trouble playing a role that requires him to be so flashy: "If drove me crazy for a few weeks. He's got a very flamboyant nature and I found myself performing in quotes, which is something I hate. Another thing that drives me crazy — I love to listen to people when I'm acting. He doesn't listen to people and he doesn't look at them."

Bathtub Scene

Yasha is an urgeot womanizer and Arkin, a devoted family man, even had to play a bathtub scene. "I've never really played a love scene before." he says. "I had a fear it would be something more than acting. I was relieved it wasn't.

Arkin has one thing in common with Yasha. "I used to be a swindler and a thief and a con man when I was growing up, like Yasha. I went straight when I became an actor. Acting is a better con than stealing. The feeling of getting away with something if a scene works well I feel I've escaped one more time.'

The morning's scene was one of the hardest in the film: Yasha is forced to tell the middle-class woman (Louise Fletcher) he hopes to elope with that he is a fraud. "It's interesting to play this kied of part where the main motivation is respectability. Miss Fletcher says. Since win-ning an Oscar as Nurse Ratched in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," she has been enormously busy. "I'm not terribly ambitious but I love to work," she

Years ago, in summer stock, she played Helen of Troy to Robert Redford's Paris. "I wore a white dress and blond wig, rather like what I'm wearing now, and he looked great. He did a ceat imitation of Sinatra then. I wonder if he still does."

The company bas been working six days a week and sometimes 12 hours a day. "Good or bad, this film will be different," Golan says.
"Good or fantastic," Golan amends, "this film will be differ-
